Dare to Remember

When the tides of change roll in and memories fade, Dare to Remember. Remember the good times. Remember the bad. Remember all that was the "Best Time of Your Life." Dare to Experience all that is new and exciting. Take a chance and grow to heights unimaginable. Dare to Belong to something more than yourself. Friends are the best investment. Dare to Stand Out and be Greek. Dare to exceed expectations through service, academics, and high standards. Make your letters shine. Dare to Succeed with a top notch academic education that will give you preparation to take the world by storm. Dare to be Red with a passion for your school that exceeds all limits. Fight, yell, cheer prepare to win with athletics that truly go beyond the norm. I-N-D-I-A-N-S means VICTORY.

Dare to be You.

"One must never lose time in vainly regretting the past nor in complaining about the changes which cause us discomfort, for change is the very essence of life."

Living State is a completely unique experience shared by people from every walk of life. ASU caters to its students from the moment they arrive on the campus. Freshmen straight out of high school leave home for the first time and move into one of three residence halls, which challenges students to grow and bond together as they encounter many experiences for the first time. Transfer and non-traditional students have a variety of events and mixers to provide them with the information and motivation they will need to succeed throughout their college careers. Traditions such as Homecoming and Welcome Week give students something to look forward to and fosters the Indian pride which every student feels. Through programs like Global Student Leader, hardworking students are rewarded with once-in-a-life opportunities to travel abroad and expand their horizons. The bond of Indian pride holds every student together as they make their journeys through college's experiences. Why live any other way but stAte?

SHOWING INDIAN SPIRIT 'TIL THE END

By now it is no surprise that 2007 was the last year for the Indians to be the official mascot of ASU. Students and fans have showed their spirit in countless ways. Everyone showed their Indian Pride by coming to school activities and sporting events throughout the year.

Indian fans, get on your feet

yes we do!

(Indiantrails)

1. Runnin' Joe was used as the University mascot during late 1980s through the early 1990s.
2. Jumpin' Joe emerged as the first Indian mascot in the 1940s through 1960s. This caricature represented the University athletic teams.
3. Clyde was purchased by the Student Government Association for $1200 and placed on campus in 1959. It was a tradition for freshmen to tip their beanies as they passed "Clyde" or if caught not doing so to kiss his feet. He resided in Wilson Hall and the Reng Center before being moved to the Student Union in 2004.
4. This banner and other memorabilia are on display in the Student Union. This one is of Runnin' Joe the second of the Indian mascots.
5. The Indian Family comes out of the teepee before the game. The Family traditionally walks around the stadium during the football games.

"I'm going to miss singing the Indian fight song at the athletic events. Mostly because it took me about a year to learn it."
- Candence Williams, Junior

"It's sad that the Indian tradition is no more, but at least I was an Indian for one year."
-Emily Hirsch, Freshman

Indian History

down through the years

By 1937, the Yearbook was called the Indian. Around this time, the caricature of 'Jumpin' Joe' was created and subsequently used for about 30 years by A-State teams. The caricature of 'Runnin' Joe' which emerged during the late 1980s is said by the athletic department's Indian Glossary to be "a meaner version of Jumpin' Joe." 'Runnin' Joe' was officially phased out July 1, 1994. A university statement dated Oct. 15, 1993, said, "After long and very careful consideration, we decided to keep the Indian nickname but replace Runnin' Joe with an appropriate new logo. The new logo will help symbolize a new era of intercollegiate athletic competition at Arkansas State University."

The ASU mascot is a trio of Indian-attired students popularly known as the Indian Family. Chief Big Track is the head of the Family which also consists of an unnamed princess and an unnamed brave. In 1959, Chief Bigtrack, portrayed by an A-State student, was a prominent figure on the football field, galloping his horse around the oval track of Kays Field when A-State scored a touchdown. A female student was added to portray an Indian princess, and another male student to portray an Indian brave who danced on the sidelines. In 1993, when ASU decided to adopt a more dignified representative than Runnin' Joe, the silhouette of the Indian Chief became the school's emblem, though the university was still without an official mascot. In 1997, members of the athletic department, Alumni Association, Student Government Association and former Indian family members joined together to begin tryouts once again for the Indian Family, who currently appear at events on campus.

INDIAN MALL

The Indian Mall has been a symbol of ASU school spirit for many years. It first opened in the late 1960's and was only the second mall in the state of Arkansas at the time. It has been home to many retail stores over the years. The mall is currently only home to Sears and the Dillard's Clearance Center. The future of Indian Mall has not been determined yet, but it will always be remembered as a long-time symbol of the Indians of ASU.

Order of the Tribe

The Final Edition

2007 will forever be remembered in ASU's history for several reasons. However, one memory very dear to the hearts of Indian fans, faculty, students, and athletes will be Order of the Tribe- the Final Edition. "Being in charge of the last Order of the Tribe is something that will remain one of my fondest and most fun memories at Arkansas State," said Student Activity Board's spirit club director, Anna Calloway. "I am so honored that I got to plan such a bitter-sweet event that will hopefully be remembered for years to come." Order of the Tribe has been a tradition that has lived up to the hype year after year, and the last one definitely did not disappoint anyone in attendance.

"Order of the Tribe was very successful this year thanks to everyone pitching in and helping out in any way they could. The rain held off, and I think that was a sign that the last Order of the Tribe with our Indian mascot was supposed to be," concluded Calloway.

Doing What We Do

"In 1909 it came to be, Arkansas State University and now we would like to welcome you to this fine institution known as ASU." Hundreds of ASU Tribal Leaders have sung this song as a welcome to new students. Being a Tribal Leader is much more than herding students around. Its an organization comprised of diverse leaders selected to be the face of ASU.

Tribal Leaders Lindsey Walker, Micheal Creason, Gabbie Rice, Quan Poole, Brittney Donaldson pose with Student Leadership Board staff member Shawn Oates at the Freshman Mixer held the Sunday before the first day of classes.

Morgan Kincaid and Lindsey Walker show off their stylish ASU gear during Orientation. Lindsey Walker said, "I loved being a Tribal Leader from helping and dancing in the mornings to having my secret Tribal Leader pal Morgan."

Tribal Leaders Reid Robertson and Lauren Young help students register for classes in the Union. Students meet with their individual advisors and then Tribal Leaders input their fall schedule into Self Service as well as walk the freshman through how to access their ASTATE email.

Weekend Adventures

is it the weekend yet?

Is it Friday yet? That is the question on every student's mind! Weekends are different for everyone though. Some students spend the weekend relaxing, catching up on school work, or doing laundry. However, many students use the weekend as an escape from the everyday stresses of academic life by spending their time in Jonesboro at one of the many athletic events on campus or socializing at one of the various activities sponsored by one of the many student organizations on campus. Other students may choose to stay in Jonesboro, but spend their Friday and Saturday nights eating at one of the local restaurants, catching a big game at a local sports bar, or dancing to the latest music trends. Regardless of how students spend their weekends, a two day break from classes can make a lot of differences in a student's life. Having fun is important regardless of how a person chooses to define "fun."

Homecoming Week Events

"When school first started we realized that Homecoming was quickly approaching! We began contacting people, ordering prizes, and deciding what events we wanted to hold. Step show was a must. It is always a favorite for students and the greek community. We also wanted to give our committee some say, so they came up with the dance off idea which took place in Heritage Plaza. We had a lot of support and a lot of decisions to make throughout the week! We brought back the float competition for the first time in three years, and I would like to think that it was a big success! Overall, getting to plan Homecoming was a lot of fun and work! This year's Homecoming was very successful, and I loved getting to be involved with every aspect of the week's events!

Homecoming Court & Game

a tradition of excellence

Homecoming is a long-time tradition at almost every college in America. It is no different here at ASU. Homecoming is one of the best times for students, faculty, alumni, friends and family to come together to support the Indians! Homecoming week is full of fun and games, but the highlight of the week is Saturday night's football game. This year the Indians caught "Saturday Night Fever" in the game against the Ragin' Cajuns of the University of Louisiana Lafayette. Sophomore Reggie Arnold rushed for a career high 225 yards and Sophomore Quarterback Corey Leonard set a new ASU mark with 5 touchdown passes. Leonard also posted a career high 359 total offensive yards. The Indians set a school record of 681 yards in the 52-21 win over the Ragin' Cajuns.

"Obviously I'm extremely pleased with the outcome of the ballgame" said ASU Head Coach Steve Roberts. "We did great in almost every area of the game tonight. I felt that we dominated and answered the question of how we were going to bounce back. I thought we bounced back in a big-time way."

Spring Break 2007

Spring Break is a long awaited and truly cherished time in a college student's life. No class, no homework, no meetings, just freedom! Students from ASU traveled all over the country and the world last Spring Break. Panama City Beach, Florida seemed to be the hot spot for students in 2007. Others preferred the opposite vacations with skiing and seeing sights overseas. Not everyone had to get that far away to relax. Many students found their rest in their hometowns or even in Jonesboro. From the beach to the mountains to their own backyard, ASU students took full advantage of their time away from the stresses of school. But, they are already looking forward to next year's break!

The best part of spring break has to be hanging out on the beach! Emily Mantz and Laura Irby were soaking up the sun in Florida.

Do you hear "The Sound of Music?" Kelly Smith, Caitlin Farris, Elizabeth Asbury, and Ambrea Russell heard it in the Salzburg City Park. Salzburg was the setting for the famous movie "The Sound of Music."

Giving Opportunities

to students to develop their leadership skills is what the Tribal Leadership Center is all about. Students apply and interview for positions for various campus organizations, such as Student Activities Board and Student Leadership Board. From there, students must go through competitive interview processes in order to have their chance to be a leader. Students on SGA, SAB, and SLB then organize programs to entertain and teach their peers. Organizations outside of the Tribal Leadership Center teach students to grow in specific areas of interest. Being a member of organizations like the Hearld Newspaper Staff, ROTC, or one of the various radio/television programs give students hands on opportunities to practice what they learn inside the classroom. Religious organizations are the home away from home for many students as they attend lunches, meetings, and retreats in order to meet people with similar ideals and find encouragement. No matter what students are interested in doing, there are always student organizations to meet their needs and give them somewhere to belong. If students are not able to find an organization which meets their needs they can always create a new organization on campus.

LET'S GET SERIOUS

Student Activities Board directors may work hard but they also have a lot of fun clowning around as well.

What's going on?

Student Activities Board Staff

Student Activities Board is an organization with the purpose to provide major educational, social, cultural, and recreational programs to benefit the university community, and enhance the image and reputation of Arkansas State University. SAB strives to educate students through leadership opportunities that will facilitate educational and personal development.

There are eight director positions and each director is responsible for working with their committee members to develop programming events to engage the entire student body. Any student is welcome to participate in Student Activities Board by volunteering to be an one of the six committees. Committee members assist the eight directors with planning of the events and programs from the schedule to what to give away at the variety of events. SAB develops various on-campus activities to keep students involved with the campus, interact with their peers and staff members, and provide co-curricular experiences to make the college life more complete.

Campus Programs

SAB Sponsored Events

Leadership Retreat

Before Student Activities Board directors began their administrations they attended a leadership conference with Student Government Association and Student Leadership Board. They enhanced their leadership skills and prepared themselves to lead the University through various programs.

PRIDE DAY

Activities are planned throughout the day, and students are encouraged to wear their scarlet and black.

Offices around campus participated in the Office Decoration Contest and were able to may pick up "spirit kits" in the Leadership Center.

The SAB and Student Government Association sponsored "pride stations" in the Library, Reng Student Services Center, Administration, or Chickasaw buildings. ASU spirit items are available at each station, and recipients are encouraged to wear their spirit items. Three awards, the Princess, Brave and Chief Big Track Awards, were be presented before a small buffet of snacks were served.

GIVEAWAYS!!!

SAB is always giving something away. Above Jerrod Lockhart and Fvette Allen encouraged students to sign up for SAB committees and gave away popcorn and pens.

Turning Away from Hate

T. Leyden shows the images that he glorified during his time as a neo-Nazi/skinhead. He now tours the country promoting racial harmony and social unity by speaking to college students about his experiences as a young adult and teenager and how he chose to turn away from the hate that he had in his own life.

Holiday Celebration

Left: In the University is your home the Student Union is your living room/entertainment/kitchen area. The SAB directors light the tree while the ASU Woodwind Quintet entertains the students as they line up at the buffet.

All in a Day's Work

Being Greek means being a part of something that has many parts. There are countless experiences and life lessons one encounters through the Greek system. From the moment one decides to join an IFC, NPC, or NPHC organization, their life changes. While the processes that recruit new members are vastly different between the three national councils, the bonds that hold Greek brothers and sisters together are what makes each organization unique and worthwhile. As members of greek organizations, students give back to the community, raise thousands of dollars for various philanthropies, improve leadership skills, and make friendships that will last a life time. Greeks put forth countless hours into organizing and running, fun and memorable philanthropies, as well as volunteering their time to participate in Jonesboro's community service events. Greeks also know how to have fun and make the most of their college years. Whether its a drop in with a silly theme or a prestigious founder's day event, Greeks enjoy any excuse to get together and make it an unforgettable event. Being a part of a greek brotherhood or sisterhood at ASU truly is a once-in-a-lifetime experience and a great way to make the most of one's college years.

Order of Omega

Standing Proud Founded in 1959, at the University of Miami, the Order of Omega was created by a group of fraternity gentlemen to recognize outstanding greek members who serve both the greek system and the University. The Arkansas State chapter of Order of Omega was re-established in 2007, in hopes to promote the vision of the national organization of Order of Omega. Order of Omega focuses on bringing together outstanding members of the Greek community to form discussions regarding affairs within the Greek system, connect current student members with faculty and alumni for networking opportunities, create a neutral environment for all fraternity members to discuss a variety of issues openly amongst one another, and to recognize Greek members who have attained high standards of leadership within their individual organizations as well as the entire Greek community.

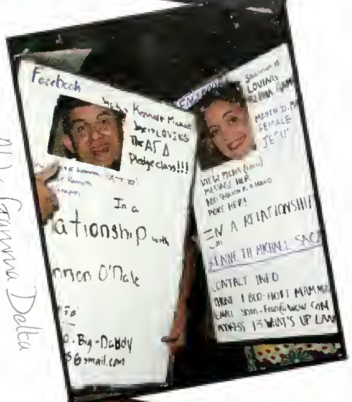
New Member Dance

Pledge Class, Older Members, and Dates

Delta Zeta

Alpha Gamma Delta



Dance, Dance, Dance! This timeless tradition is enjoyed by most Greek chapters. Whether you choose to dress casual, elegant or in themed attire, these events are sure to create memories that last a lifetime. This year's new member dance themes incorporated everything from dymanic duos to cartoon characters to the fabulous 80's, to executive wives and much more. Greek chapter members mixed, mingled and celebrated their new found Greek status. Some Greek members choose to bring a guest while others attended with a group of speical friends. Either way, these dances are lively, energenic and a great way to spend a night hanging out of old and new friends.

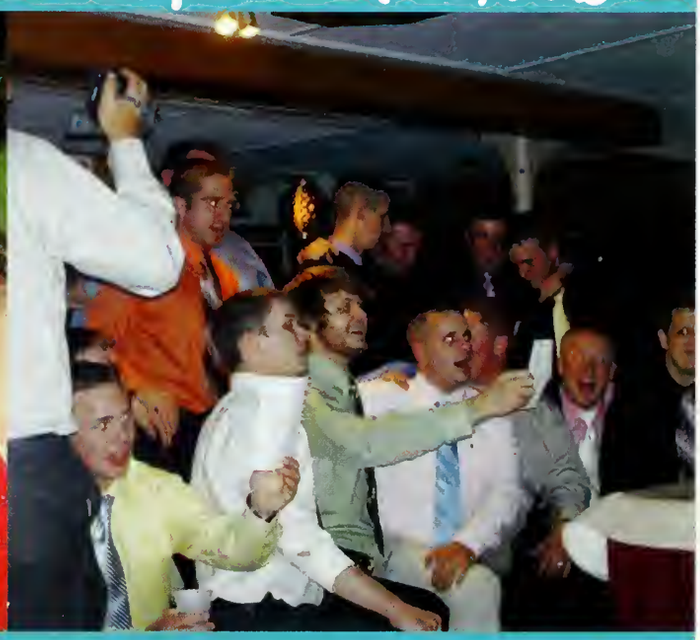
Formals

Enchanting atmosphere, good food and delightful friends! Greek Formals are traditions at Arkansas State Unvie sity. Greek members put on their best dresses and suits in hopes of spending a magicial night with good frien and dates. The annaul Winter and Spring formals requires percise preparation. First, the formal destination must b selected. Second, a date must be secured. Third, the perfect outfit must be determined. Finally, dance the night awa with chapter members and dates. However, Greek formals are not all about dancing. Most chapters have additior traditions to fill the night including awards for brotherhood and sisterhood, recogniztion of chapter sweethearts ar annoucment of chapter man of the year are just a few of the honors that are bestowed on chapter members durir formal. These capativating evenings create memories and stories that are re-lived for years to come by old and ne members alike.

IFC and NPC Formals



Life is a Party...

IFC Parties

Social gatherings are a large aspect of Greek Life at AS. It all boils down to building connections, helping worthy causes, and getting alumni and parents involved. Sometimes it just looks like a party, but often there is something more important behind it. For example, Alpha Tau Omega collected food at this year's Sleepy Hallow, and Lambda Chi Alpha always has a party to reward the efforts of people participating in Sand Blast, a charity Volleyball Tournament. Fraternities parties provide Greek students with a fun and exciting environment to reminice with old friends and meet new ones. There has to be a balance between working hard and playing hard and Arkansas State University Greek students have found a balance that benefits many others as well.

Greek Week

Individually Unique
Together All Greek

Greek Week at Arkansas State University is a time for members of the fraternity and sorority system to come together to socialize with members from all chapters as well as celebrate accomplishments from the year. Traditionally, activities are held around campus to provide all Greeks the opportunity to socialize with one another while enjoying a variety of activities. Some groups choose to simply take time to talk and eat, while other individuals choose a more active route and dance, play volleyball, or engage in a game of washers. Regardless af the activity, ar lack there af, all Greeks enjay this time to kick back and blow off the steam af a stressful Spring semester. The all Greek church service/ luncheon and the annual Greek Awards put the finishing touches on an exciting week of festivities.

AND THE AWARD GOES TO... Tera Ramsay, Milton Sullivan, Lark Little and Terry Walker, all executive members of IFC, NPC, and NPHC, announce award recipients during the 2007 Greek Awards.

Greek 101 is an educational program held every semester on the Arkansas State University campus. All new members and associate members of the fraternity and sorority community are required to attend an evening devoted to learning about the values and standards of the community as well as various policies that will play an important role throughout their undergraduate membership experience. Greek 101 also provides all new members with the opportunity to meet fellow new members from the Greek community and provides a positive environment for new friendships to develop.

Greek 101 Facilitators are chosen each year, not only to represent their individual fraternity or sorority, but to play an important role as a mentor for new members in the Greek community by leading group discussions and activities throughout the evening. Small group sessions provide all participants with the opportunity to engage in topics that are important to the community, and participate in activities for team building purposes. Greek facilitators are able to provide wisdom to new members and associate members about a variety of topics, and answer any questions that new members may have. While this is an evening of learning, the facilitators make this evening exciting and enjoyable for everyone.

College of Agriculture

ASU was founded as the Agricultural & Mechanical Training School (A&M) in 1909. The legacy of agricultural studies is still going strong. The College of Agriculture is home to the studies of Agricultural Business, Agricultural Education, Food Science, Plant Science/Environmental Horticulture, Animal Science/Pre-Veterinary Medicine, Food Technology, Technical & Vocational Education, and General Agricultural Science. It also incorporates several minors and graduate programs in agricultural fields. This college is focused on hands-on learning experiences that happen at ASU's Farm and Equine Center. Today, the farm programs runs 296 acres as not only a teaching farm, but a working farm as well, employing both full-time and student workers. The farm has grown over the years to include a beef barn, chicken house, dairy barn feed mill, a farrowing house, and several other structures. The Equine Center is home to nine horses belonging to the University and boards many others for students and alumni. The College of Agriculture hosts a petting zoo twice a year for the community, and the Equine Center is rented out for horse shows, rodeos, and even circuses. The college also sponsors a regional Farmer's Market, on Saturdays during the summer months, where they sell everything from watermelons to birdhouses. Of course, this college also has many student organizations and honor societies including: Black & Bridle, Rodeo Club, Agribusiness Club, Plant Science Club, Collegiate Farm Bureau, Alpha Tau Alpha, Pre-Veterinary Medicine Club, Collegiate Future Farmers of America, and Delta Tau Alpha. Information was obtained from the Arkansas State University website.

The Farm

The ASU Equine Center is home to nine University owned horses, four that are leased, and twenty-five being boarded for students. Riding classes are held four times a week, and a summer camp is held for young students to learn riding, care for horses & equipment and experience parts of college life.

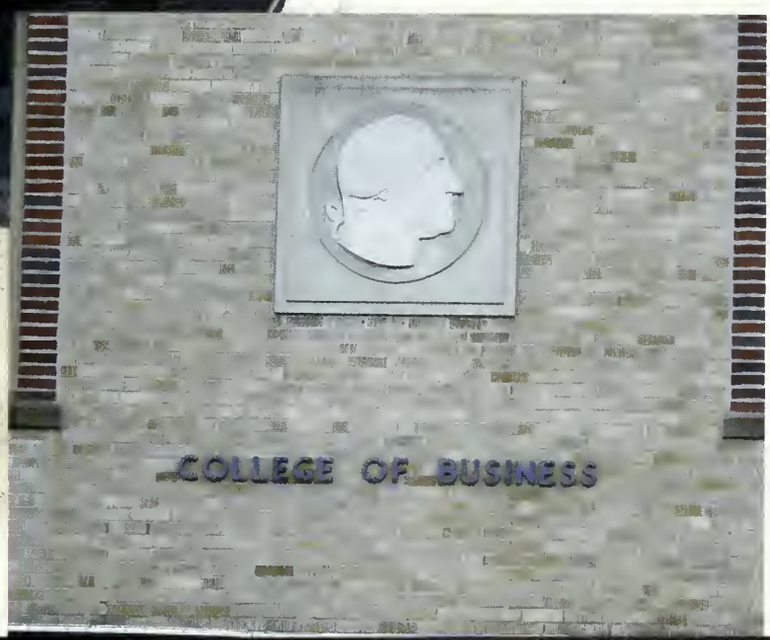
College of Business

Business Building

The College of Business is a great place to start preparing for the challenges of today's global business market. As the third largest college at ASU over 2,000 students are able to receive both undergraduate and graduate degrees from the College. The following departments are the College of Business: Accounting & Law, Computer Information & Technology, Economics & Finance, and Management & Marketing. Students also have the opportunity to become involved in many clubs and organizations within the college, such as the Accounting Club, Rho Epsilon, Marketing Club, and countless other organizations that are degree specific. Students within the College of Business also have many opportunities to study abroad for a semester, a summer, or simply for couple of weeks. The study abroad opportunities that the College of Business provides for it's students allows them to not only experience another culture; but also, see how other countries conduct business. Dr. Len Fry, Dean of the College of Business, and countless other professors provide students with a strong educational experience in order to ensure that all graduates are equipped with the necessary tools to become thoughtful leaders and insightful decision makers to meet the constantly changing demands of both the national and international business world.

The mission of the College of Business is to provide high-quality management education to traditional and non-traditional students in the Mid South and to provide support for business and communities through research, economic development activities, and consultative services. Information was obtained from the Arkansas State University website.



The College of Business was established in 1946 and has prepared a vast number of students for careers in business since. The ASU College of Business is one of only 25% of schools in the nation accredited by the prestigious Association to Advance Collegiate Schools of Business.

College of Communications

The College of Communications combines a strong liberal arts and technology background in order to prepare students to succeed in the field of communications. The Department of Journalism, the Department of Radio-Television, and the Department of Speech Communication are all departments that make up the College of Communications. It is led by the college's dean, Dr. Russell Shain. ASU hosts the state's only nationally accredited communications college, therefore students come from far and wide to study programs that cannot be found anywhere else.

Equipped with the latest technology, students in the Radio/TV and Photojournalism departments get hands on field training through technique classes that require them to film footage, write and record voiceovers, and edit their own news stories which can be aired on ASU's television or radio station.

Graphic design and journalism students learn everything that goes into print media. They become masters of the latest programs used in magazines and newspapers. Students learn how to follow leads, research, and compile breaking and feature news stories.

Forensic and speech communication students are offered a wide variety of classes designed to sharpen their critical thinking skills, and teach them how to debate, persuade, and lead audiences to take action. The forensic team studies year round in order to prepare for local and national debate competitions that can take them as far as San Francisco, CA.

The field of communications is one of the fastest growing and exciting industries. No other University in the state offers students the tools and techniques necessary to succeed in all forms of mass communications. Information was gathered from the Arkansas State University website.

The College of Communication and the College of Education are located in the same building allowing many students the opportunity to take many of their classes in one building

FINE ARTS CEN

Fine Arts

Bigger Than Life Play

The College of Fine Arts at ASU is the only college in the state that is dedicated to the Arts. It also started the first study abroad program at ASU where students study art in Florence, Italy during the summer. This college is comprised of three departments: Art, Music, and Theatre. The facilities include two theatres, two art galleries, and two major recital/performance halls. Over 300 visual, performing, and cultural events are held annually in this facility for ASU and the community. Recent theatre productions include "Wait Until Dark," "Beautiful Bodies," and "Proof." The college also produces a weekly radio program featured on KASU-FM. Student organizations for this college include: ASU Art Student Union, Print making Club, American Institute of Graphic Design and others. This college is also home to the ASU Marching Band. The band plays at many home athletic events (including football and basketball games) and other performances on campus throughout the year for various occasions.

Dean Daniel Reeves said, "Our departments educate talented men and women to pursue careers in the arts. Our graduates find careers in many creative areas and performance areas such as artists, designers, photographers, musicians, singers, composers, actors, directors, and scenic designers. Many of our graduates have excelled as artists and performers whose works have been seen in galleries, collections, in concerts, on stage, in film, and on television." Information was obtained from the Arkansas State University website.

The Fowler Center opened in January 2001. It hosts an array of events from plays and concerts to private dinners and receptions. The events at the Fowler Center have brought such distinguished names as President Bill Clinton, General Colin Powell, the Vienna Boys Choir, Rockapella and others.

Above: Wilson Hall opened in 1932 and is the oldest building on the ASU campus. After a devastating fire destroyed the Administration Building of the A&M College, Wilson Hall was built to house the library, auditorium, and Administrative offices as well as laboratories, kitchens, studios, and classrooms that served all departments of the arts and sciences. Wilson Hall is a mainstay of the campus, primarily serving as home for the liberal arts and humanities today. A limestone relief on Wilson Hall featuring a nude male contemplating a scroll has become a symbol of the dedication to quality higher education and Wilson Hall's place in ASU's history.

ASU Student Health Center

Take a Look Around

Students at Arkansas State University usually take their normal routes whether to class or to make a quick stop in the Student Union. The campus of ASU has so much more to offer. Many structures on campus are symbols of ASU's history, while many others are making their own history. The Convocation Center just celebrated twenty years since it opened. The Convo hosts everything from basketball games and concerts to rodeos and etiquette dinners. The Indians played their last game in Indian Stadium this year. The stadium will be renamed this year in honor of the mascot change. More recent projects like the Student Health Center and Indian Village are in the process of making their marks on ASU history. However, the Memorial Arch is a long-standing reminder of the origin of ASU. It commemorates the beginning of ASU as the Agricultural & Mechanical (A&M) Training College. No matter what a students needs are it can be met in the Student Union/Reng Student Services Center. This central location is a place for students to congregate in between classes, eat in the dining hall, shop at the ASU Bookstore, and participate in other activities.

Dare to be Noticed

Every year an elite group of students are selected for Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges. This honor is given to campus and academic leaders who stand out among their peers on the grounds of scholastic and community achievement. This program was founded in 1934 by Pettus Randall. Randall was an undergraduate student at the University of Alabama. He had been offered membership to many different honor societies, but the membership fees and initiation cost were too much of a financial bind. Therefore, Pettus went on to establish Who's Who Among Students In American Universities and Colleges. These students are not only recognized locally by Arkansas State University but also nationally. This year Arkansas State University named seventy-four students to the 2008 Who's Who Among American Universities and Colleges. Dr. Rick Stripling, Vice Chancellor of Student Affairs, and the Deans of the various colleges recognized the award winners at a ceremony on campus. Arkansas State University is one of 2,300 institutions in the United States that take part in this program. Information provided by the University Communications department and from the Arkansas State University.

Dare to be Red...

Pride, Strength, Passion, Loyalty, and Honor. Daring to be red is not something to claim on a whim. It is not something to do when convenient. Daring to be red is continous. It is perpetual. Daring to be red is standing with thousands of screaming fans in the last seconds of the game, having thrown all your joys into a mere point. Daring to be red is being so involved mentally and emotionally that you are on the field playing the game, focused on the battle in front of you. Daring to be red is clinging to the person's hand beside you, counting the seconds when the ball is in the air, so caught up you hold your breathe. Arkansas State University sets the bar for what strength is. It's students, fans, and admistrators showing other schools how to have pride, passion, and loyalty for your team. WE ARE stAte and WE ARE RED! Why would you live any other way?

Intramural

play hard or go home

The Department of Intramural Sports at Arkansas State University provides safe recreational programs and facilities to enhance the total educational experience and the quality of life for the university community. The Intramural program provides an opportunity for students, faculty and staff to participate in a structured and competitive setting. Campus Recreation at ASU offers more than 30 activities for men and women, along with a number of co-recreational events.

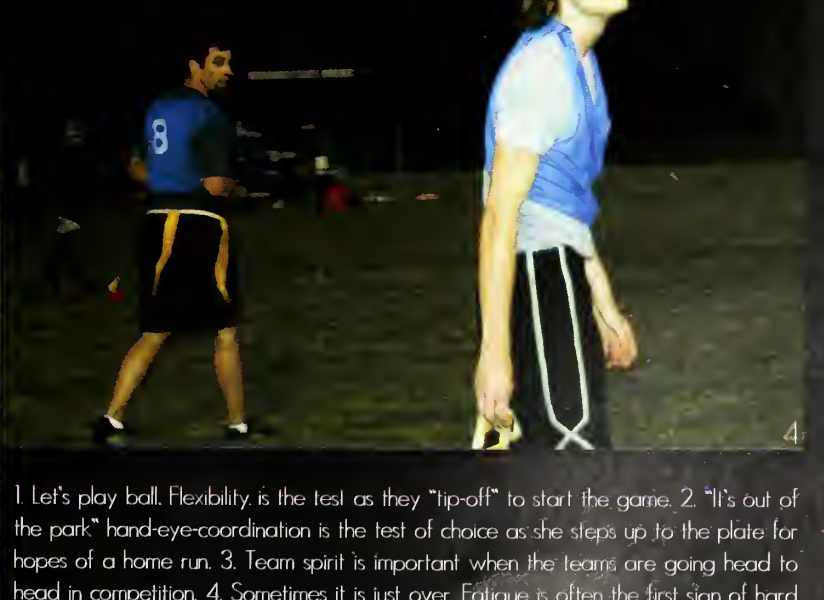
TRY ONE

Soccer, Volleyball, and Flag Football are popular intramural sports for students ta campete in. By participating in these activities students enhance their working knawledge about team work, discipline, and good sportsmanship.

Intramurals

no pain no gain

By competing in athletic events your physical stamina is put to the test. Flexibility, hand eye coordination, team spirit, and general fatigue are all signs of the TEST!



1. Let's play ball. Flexibility. is the test as they "tip-off" to start the game. 2. "It's out of the park" hand-eye-coordination is the test of choice as she steps up to the plate for hopes of a home run. 3. Team spirit is important when the teams are going head to head in competition. 4. Sometimes it is just over. Fatigue is often the first sign of hard played game.

play to win

When we compete we want to win. One of the exciting driving forces of Intramural sports is the spirit of competition. The spirit of competition pushes ones level of: passion, focus, discipline, agility, and ability. "To be a winner" means something different to each person that competes. Regardless of the meaning, everybody wants to win.

Right: Agility in matian Emily Flick uses hers skills far the killer spike.

Dare to Be You... This statement serves as a clarion call to appreciate one's uniqueness. Whether it's your personal style of dress, thoughts about politics, or vision for the future each person has their own point of view and individualized perspective. Often times it is said that your college years serve as the catalyst for ones personal development and authentic growth. Arkansas State University provides both academic and social experiences that broaden the student's frame of reference and challenges them to discover who they truely are. Daring to be you at Arkansas State University is an experience that you will always remember and value.

Faculty and Staff

Arkansas State University educates leaders, enhances intellectual growth, and enriches lives. The faculty and staff at Arkansas State University are second to none. These valuable individuals work hard to create an open and friendly campus environment while continuing to stress the importance of a strong academic emphasis. Often times, faculty and staff can be seen around compus at various events, meetings or visiting with the student body. Faculty and staff take pride in creating strong relationships with current students, as well as other faculty and staff members.

serve it up!

The Late Night Breakfast is an end of semester tradition at ASU. Faculty and staff representatives serve breakfast items to the ASU student body. Randall Tate, Craig Johnson, Beth Silverthorn and Martha Spack spread holiday cheer while serving at the Late Night Breakfast.

Late Night Breakfast

A change from the ordinary. A chance to relax, refuel, and unwind.

Students filled the Acansa Dining Hall to enjoy food, friends and a moment of relaxation. The Late Night Breakfast brought faculty, staff and students together to enjoy a break from the end of semester chaos. Faculty and staff representatives served numerous breakfast food options to students. This event provides the faculty and staff an opporutnity to mingle with the student body and celebrate the end of another semester at ASU. Students utilize this event as an opportunity catch up with friends, reminence about the semester, or perpare for a full night of studying.

FULL HOUSE Acansa dining hall is full of students grabbing a late night breakfast before studying for finals.

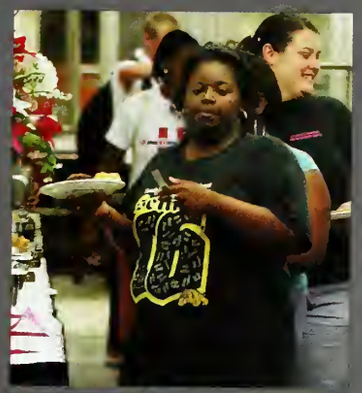
ALL SMILES Various staff and faculty members spread Holiday cheer while serving breakfast to the many students in attendance.

TIME WITH FRIENDS

Finals can be very stressful and many students have to study a lot which leaves little time for friends. Therefore, many opt to attend late night breakfast to spend quality time with their friends before they prepare for finals.

A DIFFERENT ROLE

Regardless of their normal job description, various staff and faculty members devote a night to serving students at the late night breakfast. Some even choose to be rather festive as they get in the holiday spirit.



FILLING UP

Students get served by faculty and staff members as they fill their plates. Some students make multiple trips through the line before they head to the library for hours of studying.

IT'S YOUR CALL

Everyone takes a different approach to late night breakfast in the dining hall. While some students come strictly for the food others choose to study, socialize with friends, or play an intensive game of

Dedication

The 2007-2008 Indian Yearbook is dedicated to all the students, alumni, and faculty that were once a part of the ASU family of Indians. We appreciate the history you have made for us, and we hope to continue the ASU legacy with our new mascot and the many changes taking place on campus. The history of the Indian will never be forgotten. The yearbook staff dares you to always remember the good times and the bad in your memories of the Indian and ASU.

Colophon

The Indian, 2008, Volume 85, was created by a student staff at Arkansas State University, Jonesboro, AR and printed by Jostens Publishing in Topeka, Kansas. This book is printed on 80# gloss enamel paper with UV coating applied to the first signature.

Cover: Process color litho cover with matte lamination applied. Created by the staff and Josten's Creative Services

Typography: Lead-in 12 pt Honey I Stole Your Jumper & caption copy 10pt AYT-Maximo

Hardware: Dell Optiplex 745

Software: Adobe InDesign CS2, Adobe Photoshop CS2, Jostens YearTech

Publisher: Jostens Publishing, 4000 S. Adams Topeka, KS
Representative: Stacy Harrington

Plant Consultant: Mike Barnes

Photography and Content: Photographs were taken by The Indian staff, the advisor, ASU Sports and Information, The Herald Staff, and other freelance contributors. All photos taken by The Indian staff and the advisor were taken with one of two Rebel XT digital cameras. All class and Greek organization portraits were taken by John Kennet at Child Art Studios in Paragould, AR.
The press for the The Indian is the official yearbook of Arkansas State University. Editorial content does not necessarily reflect the views of the University. Address inquiries to: Editor, Indian Yearbook, Leadership Center, Student Union.

"We must welcome the future, remembering that soon it will be the past; and we must respect the past, remembering that it was once all that was humanly possible."
- George Santayana

Dare to Remember

When your time at ASU comes to an end, Dare to Remember. Remember all the fun you had from cheering at athletic events to goofing off in the residence halls. Remember where you began and where you have come from. In the midst of rememberance, Dare to Experience life and all it has to offer. Take on the world with all you have learned, and show them all you have achieved. Dare to Belong to a group. Help others, and let them help you. Within your group of peers, Dare to Stand Out. Be proud of your Greek organization, and bring honor to your letters. Continue to support your organization like those who came before you. Dare to Succeed and continue to power your mind. An education is one thing no one can ever take from you. Dare to be Red and support ASU, no matter the mascot and upcoming changes. For those lucky enough to experience these great changes, I-N-D-I-A-N-S will always mean VICTORY.

Dare to be You

Arkansas State University Alma Mater

Our Alma Mater, ASU

Your hallowed halls shall ring

With praise by daughter and noble son

Who proudly stand and sing

Mem'ries of your stirring glory

And of youthful friends we knew

The red and black shall ever wave

On high for ASU.

The Indian Yearbook

The first yearbook at ASU was The Yearling, published in 1921 and the last edition of The Yearling was published in 1933. After a four year lapse, the 1937 senior class resurrected the yearbook and in 1937, the first edition of The Indian was published. The Indian was not published from 1942 - 1946 because of World War II because of government restrictions limiting paper consumption. By 1966, The Indian had grown to a record 328 pages. The 1967, The Indian marked the first edition of a yearbook for Arkansas State University.

Clyde

It is said that "Clyde" is charged with keeping watch over the students. After its purchase, The Herald paid tribute to the statue:

"An Indian Chief, life size and majestic...
a symbol of courage, strength, and alertness.
His place in American history is unparalleled."
His place at ASU is one of Honor.

Arkansas State University Fight Song

On, On, On To Victory

Brave Team, You're Second To None.

Let's Make This Game History

Along With The Others You've Won.

Fight, Fight, Fight With All Your Might

So That The World May See

That I-N-D-I-A-N-S Means Victory!
